Here and There

Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

HOW much do you know about your own state? I have been receiving for the last several weeks the official releases of the Arkansas State Planning Board, which tell an interesting story. Here is a portion of the July 14th release, "Rural Land Uses and Sub-Marginal Areas," written by Dean W. Blackburn, state land planning consultant:

25,000 on Relief Rolls Placed on 'Security Wages'

Works Progress Administration Takes Over the Able-Bodied

PROJECTS PENDING

1,500 Federal Proposals to Furnish Work for Arkansas

LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—The Works Progress Administration Monday placed approximately 25,000 Arkansas workers on the "security wages" scale while awaiting final action of the federal allotment board on more than 300 proposed projects in the state.

Formal launching of the new relief program now hinges on the allotment board's action on the Arkansas projects submitted last week with approval of the state office. A meeting of the board was scheduled Monday but was postponed until Tuesday.

Practically all the proposals are expected to receive approval with the exception of 25 or 30, it was said. Assistant State Administrator Floyd Sharp returned Monday from Washington where he submitted the list of projects. Nature of the projects and those approved will be announced following action by the board.

Placing of the 25,000 workers on about 1500 federal emergency relief administration projects on the "security wages" scale Monday was the first major step in a "quiet and orderly" transition from the FERA to the WPA program. Workers through this section are to benefit from the higher wage scale before establishment of work projects on the new WPA scale.

Officials expect remaining projects now operated under the FERA to be resubmitted in order to be completed. Others probably will be completed prior to disbandment of the FERA works program.

Meanwhile, the state's rural resettlement division of the United States department of agriculture under the direction of E. B. Whitaker moved toward full operation possibly by August 1. The rural rehabilitation corporation met in state administrator W. R. Dyess' office to discuss plans for liquidating the group's affairs.

Plans to take over the entire personnel of the former state rural rehabilitation staff for operation under the new division were announced Monday.

Sales Tax Poll Is Close in N. Dakota

'Antis' Score Heavily in Cities—But Rural Votes
Offset Them

FARGO, N. D.—(AP)—Although early Eastern returns called up a large majority against North Dakota's 2 per cent sales tax law, voted upon at Tuesday's state-wide special election, later reports from other sections indicated the possibility of a close race.

Returns from 482 of the 2,242 precincts.

Adjournment Motion Loses 111 to 48

Congress Rejects Resolution to End Session in Week

Pledge of 25 Republican Votes Against Holding Companies Reported

PROBERS CONTINUE

Congressmen Take Stand on Investigation of the Power Lobby

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The house tabled Tuesday by 111 to 48 a resolution to force adjournment of this session of congress by next Tuesday.

Testimony that Representative Brewster, Maine Republican, had expressed an opinion that he could obtain 25 Republican votes in the house for the provision in the utilities bill abolishing "unnecessary" holding companies, was received Tuesday by the house rules committee.

This testimony was given by Representatives Rankin, Mississippi Democrat, and Maverick, Texas Democrat, to a committee named by the house to investigate lobbying for and against the utility bill.

House Drafting Tax Bill
WASHINGTON—(AP)—The house put its own "brain trust" at work drafting the president's tax bill Monday.

The ways and means committee asked Lovell H. Parker, chief of staff of the joint congressional committee on internal revenue, and Middleton Beauman, house legislative lawyer, to try to shape up a tentative bill for the committee's consideration.

That the job was a big one was indicated by Chairman Doughton, Democrat, North Carolina, estimating it would be next week before the committee could go to work on the bill.

Representative Deen, Democrat, Georgia, suggested that some legislation be postponed and congress adjourned. "There was growing sentiment among ways and means members for stiffer excess profits taxes instead of the proposed graduated levy on corporation incomes."

Problems to Be Left Open
Parker and Beauman were not to suggest specific rates, but just to try to draft the administrative features of the bill, covering such problems as whether inheritances left to widows should be taxed less than those to children or others of "stranger blood" and how much, if any, life insurance should be exempt from inheritance taxes.

Advocates of the excess profits tax contended such a levy would be a good answer to those who opposed a graduated corporation income tax. In their study of the situation they found this:

There is, in the present law, a provision which allows corporations to fix what is called the "adjusted declared value" of their capital. On that they are allowed a 12 1/2 per cent profit. All income above the 12 1/2 per cent is subject to a 5 per cent tax.

In all 11 months ending with last May, the 5 per cent tax yielded $3,208,000. The proposed graduated corporation levy is estimated variously to bring in $67,000,000 to $102,000,000 a year. Proponents of the idea contended that it would be easy to raise that amount by reducing the allowable income to 10 per cent of the capital and stepping up the tax rate on all over that.

Says Petition Urged
Deen said many members had urged him to file also a petition which, should it receive 216 signatures, would bring his adjournment resolution to the floor immediately. He had not yet decided on that, though.

"I know this," he said, "I'm not an exception and I'm not a radical. But no pending legislation is important."

Flood Control for Arkansas Outlined

Pillsbury Report to Incorporate
Army Engineers' Findings

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The long-awaited survey of navigation, flood control and "other water uses" for the Arkansas river valley was promised Tuesday by Brig. Gen. George Pillsbury, acting chief of Army Engineers, in a letter to Representative McClellan of Arkansas.

Pillsbury said the report would be available within a few days. McClellan planned to draft legislation conforming with the recommendations, to establish a system of flood control works which would prevent such a disastrous flood as the one that recently hit Arkansas.

Monte Carlo Plunger

Well heeled (with new shoes), Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., set out to prove that he was a chip off the old block in a gamble with death when he was barred from risking his money at the high stakes tables of Monte Carlo casino. Emulating his famous father, he mounted the railing at the roof of the resort's highest building. Just then blonde Laura LaPlante came on the scene. Fearing he might lose his balance and fall into bad company, several stories below, she rushed to the rescue in the nick of time.

LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—Mrs. Ernie Maddox, secretary to Governor F. T. Felt, said Tuesday that the executive had decided not to grant clemency to Bill Barnes, 21, awaiting death in the Tucker Prison Farm electric chair for the murder of a Blytheville taxi driver.

The governor received a letter Tuesday signed by 11 of the 12 jurors who tried Barnes in the first degree and recommending that his sentence not be changed.

PWA Loan Turned Down for Orleans

Secretary Ickes Objects to One-Man Control by Huey Long

WASHINGTON—(AP)—An application of the State Charity hospital of New Orleans for public works funds for building construction was turned down Monday by Secretary Ickes.

The action was said to be predicted upon the secretary's statement some time ago that public works funds would not be approved for Louisiana since the state legislature, controlled by Senator Long, Democrat, Louisiana, enacted laws giving state authority supervision of public works expenditures in the state.

NASHVILLE, Tenn.—(AP)—A franchise tax was held out to the General Assembly Monday by Gov. Hill McAlister as the most effective plan for Tennessee's financial hole, but he emphasized that the lawmakers were free to explore any other fields of revenue.

Farm Meeting to Be Held Thursday

Several Speakers on Program at Washington
July 18

A county-wide farm and home meeting will be held at Washington at 2 p. m. on Thursday, July 18, for the purpose of discussing farm and home problems for 1935, according to an announcement by Helen Griffin, home demonstration agent, and Frank R. Stanley, county agent.

Topics of interest to all farmers and farm women will be discussed at this meeting with such subjects as the processing tax, agricultural adjustment, and other current topics coming in for their share of discussion, the agents stated.

County Agent Stanley and Home Demonstration Agent Miss Helen Griffin have made plans and arrangements for the all-day meeting, which will be held under their direction, and have invited every farm family in the county to attend. This, they say, will be one of the most important county-wide meetings to be held in the county this year.

Out-of-county speakers who will appear on the program are expected to bring farmers of the county up-to-date information on vital agricultural problems facing rural people. This is one of 18 such meetings being held throughout the state during the months of June and July. Each one of the 75 counties is holding one or more such meetings.

Other speakers on the program are: J. L. Wright, Miss Ella Posey and M. W. Muldrow, agricultural extension agents of the College of Agriculture, University of Arkansas. A special representative from Washington, D. C. will also appear on the program and discuss the cotton program for 1935.

Council Unable to Reach Decision on Municipal Plant

J. R. Henry Recommended as Manager--Rejected
in Special Session 5 to 3

VOTE IS NOT FINAL

All Names to Be Considered
Probably in Regular Session Tuesday

The city council, meeting in special session Monday night, failed to select a superintendent for the municipally-owned water and light plant to succeed the late George Sandefur.

After much deliberation, and a vote on one applicant, the meeting ended about where it started. Another attempt to select a manager of the plant will be made at the regular session of the council Tuesday night.

The council Monday night rejected J. R. Henry by a vote of 5 to 3. It was made clear however, that the vote does not actually eliminate Henry from the list of applicants and that he would be considered again at the regular session Tuesday night.

The vote against Henry: C. E. Taylor, Roy Johnson, Dr. F. D. Henry, Kenneth Hamilton, L. A. Keith. For Henry: Carter Johnson, Roy Anderson, Dr. P. B. Carrigan.

As the meeting started Mayor Albert Graves briefly outlined the purpose of the meeting and suggested that the council consider four points in its selection. He named: Honesty, initiative, subject to temptation, and experience as an executive.

L. Carter Johnson, chairman of the water and light committee, reported he had a number of applications, and read the list. He said that the water and light committee, composed of L. A. Keith, Roy Anderson and himself, had examined the list and by a vote of two of the three members it was decided that the name of J. R. Henry be submitted to the council as successor to the late Mr. Sandefur.

Dr. F. D. Henry moved that the successor to Mr. Sandefur be selected by an elimination contest, with all applicants being considered by all members of the council. Henry's suggestion, however, was not acted upon.

City of Hope Loses Peddling Tax Case

Butternut Firm Gets Injunction—City Will Take an Appeal

The City of Hope lost the first round of a court battle to enforce its peddling tax when the Chancery court in chancery court at Texarkana granted the Texarkana Butternut bread concern an injunction.

City Attorney W. S. Atkins represented Hope. The Butternut concern argued that since its plant was located in Texas the ordinance was invalid, it being contrary to law for a city to pass legislation affecting interstate commerce.

The City of Hope will appeal the case to the Arkansas Supreme Court, and carry it from there to the federal courts if necessary.

Hudspeth Will Be Delivered to Pen

To Enter Prison While His Court Fight Reaches
Final Round

HARRISON, Ark.—(AP)—Circuit Judge Jack Holt agreed Monday to a hearing Friday on a writ of error coram nobis for A. T. Hudspeth, former northwest Arkansas banker under prison sentence for receiving deposits in an insolvent bank.

San Rorex, Hudspeth's attorney, announced that the former banker would be surrendered to the warden of the penitentiary by his bondsman by Thursday, and requested Judge Holt to issue an order to the warden either to bring Hudspeth here Friday or surrender him to the Boone county sheriff. The request was taken under advisement.

Rorex asked Judge Holt to disqualify himself to act on the motion for continuance, but the judge declined this. Judge Holt said that he would be disqualified to sit on the hearing Friday, however.

The Boone county bar elected W. T. Willis of Marshall as special judge to hear the case.

Hudspeth, sentenced to a year in prison on a charge of receiving deposits in an insolvent bank, has been ordered by the Arkansas Supreme Court either to surrender to prison authorities by Thursday or forfeit a $6,000 cash bond.

Hoosac Mills' Receivers
Ask Recovery of $81,694
Already Paid

U. S. WILL APPEAL

Supreme Court Decision
Will Affect 700 Millions of AAA Taxation

BOSTON, Mass.—(AP)—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals ruled Tuesday that processing taxes collected under the Agricultural Adjustment Act are unconstitutional.

The court divided two to one on the decision. It was handed down in the case of the Hoosac Mills, which challenged the constitutionality of the processing tax and appealed to the circuit court from a decision by Federal Judge Brewster.

The Hoosac Mills receivers asked recovery of $81,694 paid in taxes under the AAA.

The collection of some 700 million dollars in processing taxes hinges upon the question of their constitutionality.

U. S. to Appeal
WASHINGTON—(AP)—A prompt appeal to the United States Supreme Court of the adverse ruling on the constitutionality of processing taxes by the Circuit Court of Appeals at Boston, was promised Tuesday by the Department of Justice.

Sales Tax Ruling on Oil Is Delayed

Senator Wilson Reported
Still Opposed to the Sales Levy

LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—Earl Wiseman, state commissioner of revenues, said Tuesday that supplemental regulations governing the collection of the sales tax by the oil industry are being held up pending a report from the attorney general and Millard Alford, attorney for the Department of Revenues.

Wiseman said the supplemental regulations will probably be issued the latter part of this week.

Wilson Opposes Tax
LITTLE ROCK—Representative Ray Blair, of Logan county, made public a letter he wrote Monday to J. Mell Brooks, of Blytheville, in reply to one received from the repeal leader, asking Blair to join the movement.

Blair, after making it clear that he would not vote for repeal, identified himself as co-author of the "meat and bread amendment," exempting certain foods from the tax, and said he would like to see the amendment stricken from the act, leaving all retail sales taxed. He said he believed merchants should be free to keep a record of gross sales and settle for the tax "regardless of whether he collected the tax."

He said he would not favor a special session at this time to eliminate the exemptions and concluded the letter as follows:

"I for one am not taking any chances with my good friends Leo Nyberg, Gene Hampton, J. O. Beck, Jr., Adrian Coleman, Maj. Ivey Crawford of Mississippi county or any of those boys from eastern Arkansas. We fought this out at the regular session. We won. I'm not going to sea on a sales tax voyage with Speaker Harve those boys holding the ship and those boys holding the ship."

Representative Mark E. Woolsey, of Franklin county, said in a letter received at the capital that he would not vote to repeal the sales tax law.

Acid Breath May Hide a Serious Disease.

The terms, acidity and alkalinity, have become so prevalent that, when acidosis occurs, there is the danger of dismissing the condition as such rather than looking for some more serious trouble that may be lurking behind it. You can tell acid condition by smelling a person's breath. And it can be noticed in the excretions of the body.

If you receive enough sugars or carbohydrates in your diet, you will not break down your own fats. If, however, starches and sugars are insufficient, the fat is broken down and substances form which yield acidosis.

Ordinarily the presence of small amounts of such substances, as occurs, for instance, in fevers, does not yield very many symptoms. In one hospital in London normal children were fed large amounts of various substances leading to the formation of acid, but these children failed to develop and serious symptoms except lack of appetite.

Therefore, the trouble in cases in which acetone appears in association with fever is probably not due to the acid formation but to the infection which brings about the fever.

When a doctor sees a child with fever, and vomiting, and when he finds at the same time the acid substances present in the excretions, he may call the condition acidosis without making a further search for the trouble which lies behind.

But in a number of cases a careful scientific study indicated that such children suffered with tuberculosis, appendicitis, typhoid fever, or infection in the kidney. This hidden infection, when discovered and controlled, was found to be the real cause of the conditions, including the development of acid.

Sometimes a careful study of cases of nausea, vomiting, and a lack of appetite in children, with the presence of acid in the excretions, is shown to be due to infected tonsils and adenoids. Prompt removal of these sources of infection results in a complete clearing up of the condition.

Frequently the beginning symptoms of acidosis are spells in which the child has a tired feeling, yawns a great deal and becomes exceedingly pale. The background of this condition is found to be inadequate nutrition.

When the child is supplied with a well balanced diet, including proper quantities of the essential food substances, the condition clears up and the child tends to develop also an increased resistance to various forms of infection.

Shows Solomon as Having to Be a King—John Erskine Writes Satirical Novel of Ancient Judea

King Solomon was not so much an all-wise monarch as a sensitive and thoughtful man who would have preferred to spend his days writing poetry and who was pushed into action only by the energy of his women kind. Or so, at any rate, suggests John Erskine in his new novel, "Solomon, My Son!"

Mr. Erskine, returning to the vein which made "The Private Life of Helen of Troy" such a readable book, presents Solomon as an Old Testament character surrounded by ultra-modern complications.

Undertaking to build his famous temple, Solomon learns that temples have to be paid for and that King Hiram of Tyre is a shrewd bargainer. To pay him he must raise taxes; doing this brings him up against all those irritations about budget-balancing and trade revival which plague governments today.

In addition, Solomon hates to make decisions. First his mother, then a palace concubine, and finally his Egyptian wife, push him along. They make him a king in spite of himself, and the foundation of his wisdom—after he makes fruitless efforts to be a second David—comes in his discovery that it is useless to try to transcend what you were actually born with.

Mr. Erskine has written a smooth,

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

Dress Children to Suit Weather Is Best Rule.

"Don't you think," said Grandma Stokes, "that children catch cold from being over-dressed?"

"That depends," we answered, "if they cool off gradually and aren't too tired, they shouldn't if they are otherwise healthy. Of course, it's difficult to tell just how some persons catch cold. Some are more susceptible than others."

"My Mary's children seem to have more summer colds this year than ever before," she went on, "and it worries me. You can't tell her anything because she says she knows more about children than I ever did. So I keep quiet."

"Last winter she and Edward decided to take a place at the shore this summer. About Christmas she began to knit the children the most beautiful coats you ever laid your eyes on, and caps to match. And sweaters—you just ought to see them."

"And now your daughter hates to see them go to waste after all her trouble. Is that it?"

"Cool Off Too Quickly"

"Exactly. Edward couldn't get his vacation and they had to stay at home. But every excuse Mary gets, she puts on one of these outfits. When the children come in she makes them take them off so they won't get dirty, and I'm sure they get all steamed up and then cool off too quickly."

"That may be," we agreed. "But I think it is more than just showing off. Anyone who works with wool is likely to get a prejudiced view. And after all, woollens are as necessary in their way in summer as in winter. Cool days and cool evenings, you know. But wool on the children too much of the time isn't healthy."

"I wish she would give some of those things to Clara," she sighed. "That's my other daughter. She has no time to knit and little money to buy sweaters for all the children. I worry about them the other way 'round. They live near the mountains, and the evenings are freezing cold. Those youngsters must be made of iron, running around the way they do with hardly anything on. But they're hardly ever sick. Clara keeps the baby warm, but the rest of them—" She stopped to shiver.

"Wool for Cool Weather"

"Mountain or city," we philosophized, "when it's cool put on wool. When it's hot put on as little as possible. Two days are seldom alike, and one day can change every hour as far as temperature goes. Summer is actually as bad as winter for taking off and putting on. Babies in hot cities need nothing but a ditty during the day. But you have to keep an eye peeled for a sudden change or cool evenings. Then on goes the shirt and, if it's needed, a sweater, too."

"Sweaters for babies?"

"They are one of the important items of the layette these times."

Why Grandma did not knit herself, we suspected. It was her stiff hands. But that did not affect her sense of fitness. She was right about the children. It was all too one-sided. Too hot, too cold—neither are healthy.

picked a dark blue. "And now," little breathlessly, said the salesgirl, "you will want a beach robe. Want about something in blue that will go with either of the suits? And of course, some smart sandals."

When Jo had quite finished in the beach wear department—after adding, also, a beach pajama outfit—the salesgirl asked, "Did you wish to charge this?"

The question startled Jo for a moment, but finally she managed to say, "Yes, please. To Crest Lake, Incorporated."

The girl's eyes seemed uncertain. "Is that a new account?"

"Yes, I believe it was opened just this morning," Jo gave the address, requesting that the purchases be sent direct to Crest Lake Inn.

And between the time Jo Darlen left the beach wear department and sought the elevators, a curious thing happened. The salesgirl, just a bit dubious, had telephoned the credit department, and the credit department assured her that there was certainly an account opened under the name of Crest Lake, Incorporated. Thereafter, the word spread like wild-fire through the store. The young woman for whom Douglas Marsh had opened an account was in Lytson's! Floor walkers straightened and peered about with more interest than usual. Salesgirls eyed every likely young woman who walked into their particular departments.

Jo was unfamiliar with the store, and she did not ask her way about—so it was some few minutes before she stood in front of the battery of silver elevator doors. Just as she was about to step into an "up" car one of the floor walkers approached her tentatively and

U. S. Needs King Says Famed Wit

Roosevelt Would Do, With Huey Long as "Prince of Wales"

NEW YORK.—(A)—What this country needs, said H. L. Mencken Friday, is not a dictator but a king. Returning to Baltimore from a trip abroad, the ex-editor suggested that President Roosevelt would make a good king to start out with, and Huey Long could be "a sort of Prince of Wales."

"Why a king, he was asked. "Well, the king, after he becomes a king," he replied, "does not run for re-election, and would not bother about 1936. If he were king he could do a lot of things which he is not able to do as president."

"He would require prime ministers and all that sort of thing, but while they changed he would remain stable. He would naturally have more power than King George of England, who is a fitting sort of fellow and who has little or no interest in politics."

"A king should not be a stamp collector. Franklin, as a matter of fact, is a stamp collector in a small way, but not as bad as the English king, as he only collects stamps of the Farley issue."

"Why Roosevelt?" "First of all," he replied, "Roosevelt is a realist. He comes from a sort of royalty and he is married to a Roosevelt."

Senator Long, he said, was "too inexperienced" to be king right away.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

Vacation Is Time to Try Beauty Aids.

When it comes to care of the complexion during a summer holiday, beauty enthusiasts are divided into two schools of thought. The first thinks that the skin needs complete rest from cosmetics and treatments. The other maintains that a vacation offers a splendid opportunity for re-conditioning and use of preparations that you never find time to try at home.

Of course, your personal decision must depend largely on the place you intend to go. If you are going to stay at a resort hotel or country club, you'll have to make up as carefully as you do in town. You won't have to cook over a campfire or help your hostess with the dishes, so take along various masks and special creams and lotions to use during some of your leisure hours.

Dawdle over your nightly routines, doing all the things you always are too tired to do at home. By using a mask twice a week, plenty of creams at night and giving your hair extra special manieures and your nails unusually long brushings, you ought to re-

To her surprise Jo found that it was almost Lytson's closing time when she had finished. She wondered vaguely how much her purchases had totaled, and she was on the point of asking for the total when she decided that this was, after all, the business of Douglas Marsh.

When she reached the Fendale once more she sagged, weary but happy, into a chair. "What a day it had been! What—"

She leaped up suddenly, remembering that Bret Paul was coming to take her to the University Inn for dinner, and to a movie afterward. Hurriedly she rearranged her hair when there was an imperative knock at the door. Sighing impatiently, Jo crossed the room and swung back the knob. It was Bret.

"Why, Bret, you're early. I just this minute got in."

His voice sounded strained and queer. "Like your job?" he asked, tossing his hat on a chair and leaning against the door he had just closed.

"Oh, Bret, I haven't told you. I've a new job. That's what the shopping was all about. I've been at it all day, and—" She stopped, seeing Bret's clouded eyes. "Why, Bret, what's wrong?"

"I know all about your new job," he said quietly. "That is, I know almost all about it. I didn't know it included clothes."

She had never seen Bret like this, and she staggered back as if he had struck her a blow.

And How

Some day you intend to do
When your conscience tells you to,
When the spirit rouses you—
Why not now?
Have you aimed an arrow high
As a mark in By and by?
Tense your bow and let it fly—
Do it now.
Time's unchanging law is stern:
Wasted days will not return—
Save a bit of what you earn—
Do it now.
Don't say: "Some day I'll begin,
When my lucky ship comes in—
You must launch your ship to win,
Do it now.
If you want to get a kick
Out of life, without a brick,
Tackle something tough—and stick—
Do it now.
Life's a play and this your cue:
Play the game—it's up to you—
Show the world what you can do,
Now—and how! —Selected.

"Furthermore, the country needs a rest from some of this legislation about which there is a question as to constitutionality. The Democratic party is losing ground and prestige by pressing this legislation at a time when congress is not able to give it the proper consideration."
"This share-the-wealth and soak-the-rich and save-the-poor legislation, some of which I am in favor, can wait six months longer," he said, "because the rich will not get too rich and the wealth can then be shared and the poor be taken care of."

Sales Tax Poll

cinets in the state showed that 20,063 voted for the tax, and 25,762 voted against.
Fargo, center of the forces opposing continuation of the law which went into effect May 1, overwhelmingly voted to repeal the tax, aimed by its legislative creators to meet state relief contributions and provide school aid. Although the administration of acting Gov. Walter Welford was strongly arrayed in favor of the tax, it seemed doomed for defeat if the early trend continued. Most of the early returns were from urban centers, including Fargo and Grand Forks.
Proponents of the tax said that it was passed by the legislature last winter to meet federal demands of $1,200,000 as the state's contribution toward relief and special aids for the next biennium.
The law was to be effective for a two-year period, passed as emergency legislation.

Slot-Machines in Texarkana Ousted

Bowie County (Texas) Operators Withdraw in Face of Threats

TEXARKANA.—Coin machines of the horse racing type and straight slot machines left Bowie county Monday as a result of the warning issued Saturday by County Attorney W. N. Harkness, announcing his intention to drive gambling devices from the county.

Without waiting for the expiration of the time limit set by Harkness, operators of these machines pulled them from nesting corners in which they have been attracting crowds during the past several months.

The term of "game and skill" however, was injected into the drive to temporarily delay procedure against marble machines, because of several test cases over the state of Texas. It has been contended that these marble machines permit the player to become skillful at shooting the balls and that his rewards or losses depend largely on his ability to shoot the balls into the correct slots.

After several conferences with operators of the machines, Harkness Monday agreed to permit the marble machines, or so-called "games of skill" to be operated until he has received a ruling from a high court in Texas as to their legality.

Hope Negro Teacher Writes Best Brief on Vocational Agriculture

The annual Master Teacher's contest of the 40 negro vocational teachers of Arkansas was held at Pine Bluff, Ark., July 12, during the annual vocational conference. The award of a gold key for the best brief on vocational agriculture teaching and activities in Arkansas was presented to J. A. Harris local vocational teacher in Henry C. Yerger High School. The presentation address was made at the A. M. & N. college, Pine Bluff, by Dr. J. B. Watson, president of the A. M. & N. college. President Watson highly complimented the work of the Yerger school vocational center, and the instructor.

The 40 vocational departments were scored according to the rating card for vocational agriculture education in colored school in Arkansas by the State and Federal Divisions. The work in the Yerger department for 1935 scored 890 points or 89 per cent out of a possibility of 1000 points on the nine major points in vocational agriculture: Types of instruction, enrollment, supervision, practice, group leadership, special state activities, preparation for end the methods of instruction, physical equipment, publicity, and evidence of community needs in plan of work. This type of work has been taught in Yerger High School for the last four years as a part of the regular high school course to high school boys and to men and women in the Hope and near by communities. J. A. Harris came to his native home, Hope, four years ago from Monroe county, where he served in the same capacity for eight years. indebtedness and then to balance the budget.

He recommended a franchise tax, which is a levy on invested capital of corporations, as a substitute for the present 3 per cent corporation excise tax that is imposed on net earnings arising from business done wholly within the state.

Governor McAllister estimated that the net revenue increase would be $1,750,000 a year and that this, together with an additional $500,000 annually that auditors said could be expected from reorganization of the Finance and Taxation Department, would be sufficient to make income equal outgo. He suggested creation of a non-salaried tax commission to seek improvements in the state's tax structure and left the way open for enactment of an old age pension law if the legislators are willing to provide the large additional sum necessary by the imposition of taxes.

Senator Leighton Ewell and Representative Robert Brown are planning to introduce old age pension proposals. Among bills introduced were those providing for a graduated chain store tax, a 10 per cent levy on amusements and an increase in the inheritance rates. Several New Deal measures, recommended by McAllister, were introduced. They include bills asked by the Tennessee Valley Authority and the Public Works Administration.

Labor Warned to Exercise Caution

Green Urges Careful Use of New Wagner Labor Relations Law

WASHINGTON — (AP) — William Green Sunday urged member unions of the American Federation of Labor "to be absolutely sure of their ground" before prosecuting employers under the Wagner labor disputes act. "The enactment of this measure, long and bitterly fought by organized employers, marks the beginning of a new chapter in the history of American labor," the A. F. of L. president said in a pamphlet distributed to union leaders throughout the country. "Great responsibility rests with labor and management alike to see that these new pages in the annals of our industrial relations are not marred by a record of strife bred by misunderstanding, misrepresentation, and the deliberate flouting of the law." The Wagner act guarantees labor's right to bargain collectively, sets up a new labor relations board to handle violation complaints, makes any employer-attempt to interfere with employee self-organization an unfair practice, outlaws the company-dominated union and gives the labor union representing a majority of the employees in a shop the right to speak for all the employees in that shop, whether or not they are members of the union. Green urged the labor leaders to pay no attention to claims that the act is unconstitutional. "Leading legal authorities of the nation are of the opinion that the act is sound," he said.

Alexander the Great was born in Europe, died in Asia, and was buried in Africa.
